No Plan to Close U.S. Prison

Guantanamo needed to house terror suspects, Cheney says

WASHINGTON | Vice President Dick Cheney, reacting to a growing chorus of calls to close the U.S. prison at Guantanamo Bay where terrorism suspects are held, says there are no present plans to do so.

"The important thing here to understand is that the people that are at Guantanamo are bad people," he said in an interview to be aired Monday on Fox News Channel. "These are people that were captured in the battlefield of Afghanistan or rounded up as part of the al Qaeda network."

Human rights activists and some lawmakers — mostly Democrats — are pressing for the prison's closure because of allegations of torture and abuse of detainees.

Sen. Mel Martinez of Florida on Friday became the first high-profile Republican to say the administration should consider closing the prison. "It's become an icon for bad stories and at some point you wonder the cost-benefit ratio," Martinez said.

Fellow Republican Sen. Chuck Hagel of Nebraska told CNN on Sunday the U.S. is "losing the image war around the world" and Guantanamo is one reason.

The prison in Cuba holds about 540 detainees. Some have been there more than three years without being charged with any crime. President Bush has said his administration is "exploring all alternatives" for detaining the prisoners.

The Senate Judiciary Committee plans a hearing Wednesday on the issue of detainees. SIOBHAN MCDONOUGH (AP)

IDENTIFICATION | Dumb Drop If you're going to rob someone's wallet, you better hold on to your own. Police in Harrison, Ark., report they found two wallets at the scene of a robbery. One was empty and belonged to the victim. The other was dropped by a suspect as he was running away, officials said. Police Chief Lyle Smith said it won't be too hard to find one of the two men they think committed the robbery: They now have his ID and are looking for him. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

SCIENCE

Next Year: How Does Toxic Waste Decay?

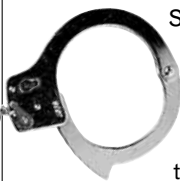

Two Amherst, Mass., eighth-graders spent months on a science project showing the dangers of BB guns, only to be disqualified from the state science fair because officials said BB guns are too dangerous. Nathan Woodard and Nathaniel Gorlin-Crenshaw spent seven months testing their hypothesis, which stated that BB guns can be deadly and shouldn't be used by kids. They even spent $200 on ballistics gelatin, which has the same density and consistency as human flesh, to use during tests. "The scientific review committee does not consider science projects involving firearms to be safe," said a science fair official. (AP)

SUBSTITUTION

He's Running Out of Relatives to Do This

A man who paid a relative to serve his jail sentence for him has been caught and sentenced again in Bethlehem, South Africa, the BBC reported. Rupert Reddi originally received a four-month jail sentence in 2001 for kidnapping and assault. After an appeals process, authorities thought they'd sent him to jail in 2003. Three months later, officials were tipped off that they had actually jailed Roland Archery, a relative of Reddi. Court records were reportedly tampered with, so papers sent to the prison had Archery's fingerprints instead of Reddi's, according to the BBC. Both men have now been sentenced to three years in prison for fraud. (EXPRESS)

PARENTING

Only Cool Kids Drive Their Moms Around

A Chicago woman allowed her 11-year-old son to drive her minivan on June 6 to his elementary school, where he crashed near a group of children. The minivan jumped the curb and hit a school zone sign as he tried to turn a corner not far from where kids were lining up to go inside, officials said. The boy was expelled and both he and his mother — who was a passenger along with her daughters — were ordered to traffic court later this month. (AP)

Research On Cancer Criticized

Report cites barriers to making patients aware of new advances

WASHINGTON | Promising cancer research needs to be translated more quickly into practical methods of diagnosis and treatment, a presidential commission says.

Barriers exist at every step between the laboratory and a patient's bed, according to the report being released Monday.

Unless those barriers are eased, "the national investment in cancer research will be tragically squandered, for discoveries that do not lead to improved patient outcomes are tantamount to no discovery at all," the President's Cancer Panel said.

Aside from scientific challenges, one problem is that advances can take too long to reach patient care, said the panel's chairman, Dr. LaSalle Leffall Jr. of Howard University in Washington.

"If we don't get the information out, of what value is it to patients?" he asked.

The panel's recommendations include that the National Cancer Institute should require that hospitals it designates as comprehensive cancer centers disseminate research findings to local oncologists and cancer organizations. (AP)

Miss. to Revisit Civil Rights Murders

Trial set to begin for Edgar Ray Killen in '64 slayings of workers UNION, MISS. | Edgar Ray Killen likes to chat. This is the thing his friends and neighbors note about him: his famous, relentless, guileless talkativeness.

They tell stories about fishing trips that had to be canceled when a quick exchange with Killen, 80, stretched into an hourlong huddle. They describe impromptu lectures delivered at Wal-Mart.

"He is," said Kenny Joe Bankston, a sawmill operator and neighbor,

"flat hard to get away from."

In a trial that begins Monday in Philadelphia, Miss., prosecutors are expected to paint a picture of a much younger and more menacing man. They will make the case that Killen was the leader of the Neshoba County Ku Klux Klan and planned the June 1964 murders of Michael Schwerner, Andrew Goodman and James Chaney.

The three civil rights workers were overtaken by a group of men and shot to death on a highway outside of town. Federal agents swarmed into town to investigate their disappearance, and 44 days later, the victims' bodies were found

Killen was tried on federal conspiracy charges in 1967, but the jury deadlocked 11-1; the lone holdout declared that she couldn't ever convict a preacher.

A series of high-profile civil rights-era murders have been reopened since the late 1980s, and pressure gradually mounted to address the killings, which were the basis for the movie "Mississippi Burning." Although a number of men originally tried in the case are still alive, a grand jury in January indicted only Killen. Killen has denied involvement in the slayings and the Klan.

His attorney, James D. McIntyre of Jackson, said Killen's "spirits are high. He's still optimistic about the case." ELLEN BARRY (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Cheney Blasts Dean in Interview

WASHINGTON | Howard Dean is "over the top," Vice President Dick Cheney says, calling the Democrats' chairman "not the kind of individual you want to have representing your political party."

"I've never been able to understand his appeal. Maybe his mother loved him, but I've never met anybody who does. He's never won anything, as best I can tell," Cheney said in an interview to be aired Monday on Fox News Channel's "Hannity & Colmes."

Recently, Dean called the GOP "pretty much a white, Christian party" and Republican leaders have called on him to apologize. (AP)

Michael Jackson could call this Calif. prison home if the jury finds him guilty.

If Jackson Gets Jail Time, Special Cell Seems Likely

SAN FRANCISCO | If the child molestation case against Michael Jackson ends with a prison sentence, the pop star's likely new home would be almost as exclusive as his Neverland ranch.

It's far from glamorous, but the protective housing unit within Corcoran State Prison is considered a desirable refuge for inmates who need extraordinary protection from other prisoners.

Occupants of its 8-by-12-foot cells include Charles Manson and Juan Corona, who killed 25 migrant farmworkers in the 1970s.

Because the unit is so secure, it's considered a virtual oasis in the 163,000-inmate state prison system.

"They know they're in a safe place and they don't want to ruin that," said Corrections Department spokeswoman Terry Thornton. "It's an exceptional placement." (AP)

Cuban Exile Faces Hearing

Allegations against Posada pose test for U.S. war on terrorism

MIAMI | For more than 40 years, Luis Posada Carriles fought what he believed was the good fight against Fidel Castro's communist regime in Cuba and other leftist Latin American governments opposed by the United States.

The Cuban-born Posada, a former CIA operative and U.S. Army officer and a shadowy figure known as "Ramon Medina" in the 1980s Iran-Contra scandal, wants to retire in Florida and dabble in painting.

But allegations about his past may prevent him from enjoying that quiet retirement.

Posada has been accused of masterminding the deadly 1976 bombing of a Cuban airliner and a string of 1997 hotel bombings in Cuba after he left the CIA in the 1960s. He is not charged with a crime in the U.S., but could be deported.

Posada, 77, faces a hearing

Posada

Monday before an immigration judge in El Paso, Texas, on charges that he entered the U.S. illegally by sneaking across the Mexican border in March. He was arrested May 17 in Miami, where he was sheltered by allies in the Cuban-American community while planning to seek U.S. political asylum.

Other governments are watching closely to see how the Bush administration reconciles U.S. use of Cuban exiles like Posada when it suits Washington's needs and its campaign against global terrorism following the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001. CURT ANDERSON (AP)

Earthquake Jolts Southern Calif.

PALM SPRINGS, CALIF. | A moderate earthquake shook most of Southern California early Sunday, rattling nerves along with homes and businesses. There were no immediate reports of any injuries or damage, authorities said.

The magnitude-5.6 quake struck about 8:40 a.m. and was centered 20 miles south of Palm Springs, according to a preliminary report by the U.S. Geological Survey.

The quake was felt as far west as Los Angeles and as far south as San Diego, 75 miles southwest of Palm Springs. (AP)

Government Reports a Drop In Rate of Family Violence

Child abuse and other forms of violence involving families fell by more than half between 1993 and 2002, in line with the decline in crime overall, the government said Sunday. The rate of family violence fell from about 5.4 victims to 2.1 victims per 1,000 residents age 12 and older, according to a report by the Bureau of Justice Statistics. Simple assault was the most frequent type of violent offense. Murder accounted for less than one-half of 1 percent of all family violence between 1998 and 2002. (AP)

Study: Drivers Given Speeding Leeway

WASHINGTON | Authorities patrolling U.S. highways tend to give motorists a cushion of up to 10 miles per hour above the speed limit before pulling them over, says a survey by a group of state traffic safety officials.

This practice creates an unsafe comfort level at high speeds and is a potential safety hazard, according to the report being released Monday by the Governors Highway Safety Association.

The group found that 42 states allow drivers to exceed the speed limit before they are stopped.

"This cushion truly exists across this country and in some cases is more than 10 mph above posted limits," said Jim Champagne, the association's chairman.

Congress in 1995 allowed states to raise limits above 55 mph in urban areas and 65 mph on rural roads. (AP)

VANITY PATES: Italian Prime Minister Silvio Berlusconi raised eyebrows with his face-lift — but he wasn't the only head of state worried about his looks. Irish Prime Minister Bertie Ahern has spent $34,260 on make-up artists in the past year, his office said Friday.

President Meets With Labor Activists Over Protest Plans

Interim President Eduardo Rodriguez spent nearly two hours in the opposition stronghold of El Alto, meeting with Indian and labor activists whose nearly month-long blockade cut off the main food and gasoline supply route to the capital, La Paz. They have demanded that he promise to nationalize the country's oil and gas industries and hold early elections.

Rodriguez

Abel Mamani, one of the protest leaders in El Alto, praised Rodriguez for agreeing to the meeting, but he said his group was going ahead with plans for a large-scale — but peaceful — protest march Tuesday. (AP)

Palestinians Execute 4 Men In Bid to Deter Crime Wave

Palestinian authorities carried out their first executions since 2002 on Sunday, killing four convicted murderers in a campaign meant to halt a growing wave of lawlessness.

Sunday's executions appeared to be an attempt to deter criminals and send a message to the public without directly confronting the armed militants of Hamas and Islamic Jihad. None of the executed men was believed to be affiliated with any of the major militant groups. (AP)

Iran Blames Iraqi Baathists for Bombs

Others blame internal strife for blasts that kill 9

TEHRAN, IRAN | Bomb blasts struck Iranian government buildings in the capital of an oil-rich border province, followed within hours by two other bombs in central Tehran, killing a total of nine people days before Iran's presidential elections.

State-run television quoted hospital officials as saying at least eight people were killed and 86 injured in four bomb explosions in Ahvaz, capital of the southwestern Khuzestan province bordering Iraq. Hours later, two small bombs exploded in central Tehran, killing one person and wounding four. Police said one suspect was taken into custody.

A spokesman for the Supreme National Security Council, Iran's top security decision-making body, blamed groups affiliated with Saddam Hussein's former Baathist regime in Iraq. State TV quoted spokesman Ali Agha Mohammadi as saying the perpetrators of the Ahvaz bombings had infiltrated Iran from Basra in southern Iraq.

Some Sunni leaders in Iraq have accused Shiite Iran of meddling in Iraqi affairs by backing Shiite Muslim clergy and politicians in a bid to sway Iraq's politics toward an Islamic establishment.

Iranian soldiers stand guard Sunday at the blood-covered site of a blast near Imam Hussein Square in Tehran.

Iran denies the allegations, but some speculate that extremists loyal to Saddam could be trying to create insecurity in Iran ahead of the presidential polls.

Others pointed to a more local cause. Ahvaz was the site of recent violent protests after reports circulated of an alleged plan to alter the proportion of Arabs and non-Arabs in the region. Officials at the time confirmed one death but opposition groups said more than 20 demonstrators had been killed. Some 250 were arrested.

Arabs make up about 3 percent of Iran's population; Persians account for 51 percent of the population of 69 million. ALI AKBAR DAREINI (AP)

Oil Exporter Nigeria Left Out of G-8 Deal

Africa's most indebted nation doesn't qualify because of its wealth

ABUJA, NIGERIA | World Bank chief Paul Wolfowitz on Sunday praised a historic deal to cancel the foreign debt of some of the world's poorest nations and said he was hopeful debt relief was also on the way for Africa's biggest debtor, Nigeria.

Wolfowitz spoke to reporters soon after arriving in the Nigerian capital, Abuja, on the first leg of a four-nation Africa tour — his first since taking over as head of the 184-nation development bank last week.

Wolfowitz speaks to women at a World Bank-assisted project in Abuja Sunday. Nigeria has oil wealth but major debt.

Finance ministers from the world's richest countries, grouped together in the G-8, agreed Saturday to cancel $40 billion worth of debt owed by 18 of the world's poorest nations, most of them in Africa. Nigeria is Africa's most populous nation and the most heavily indebted country on the continent, owing $35 billion. But as the world's seventh-largest oil exporter, Nigeria doesn't meet the World Bank definition of a low-income country.

The G-8 finance ministers said Nigeria's foreign debt will be considered separately by the Paris Club of international lenders.

Wolfowitz said creditor nations "will hopefully come up with a deal to forgive Nigeria's debt. I'm very positive that something serious will happen." DANIEL BALINKT-KURTI (AP)

U.S. Sanctions Israel for Military Sales to China

JERUSALEM | The U.S. has imposed sanctions on the Israeli arms industry in recent months, Israeli officials and media reports said Sunday, escalating tensions between the allies over Israeli military sales to China.

Haaretz daily reported the U.S. has halted cooperation on several projects and frozen delivery of sensitive equipment. A senior Israeli defense official confirmed that sanctions were in place, and described the situation as a "serious crisis."

U.S. officials could not immediately be reached for comment. (AP)

U.S. Deaths in Iraq Climb Past 1,700

Milestone reached when roadside bombs kill 4 more soldiers

BAGHDAD | One year ago, 825 members of the U.S. military had died during the Iraq war — nearly three-quarters of them in hostile action.

Since then, Iraq has fulfilled a number of goals set by the Bush administration, including historic elections. And the number of U.S. forces who have died in Iraq has more than doubled as the insurgency that took shape with the fall of Saddam Hussein increased in violence.

Four more American soldiers were killed Saturday in two roadside bombings west of Baghdad, the military said Sunday, increasing the number of U.S. forces to die since the war began in March 2003 to at least 1,701 — with at least 1,297 as a result of hostile action. The figures include five military civilians.

When President Bush declared that major combat operations in Iraq had ended on May 1, 2003, 138 members of the U.S. armed forces had died. That marked the halting beginning of the Sunni-dominated insurgency that caught American planners and the military off guard.

That insurgency has also killed at least 12,000 Iraqi civilians — most of them Shiites — in the past 18 months, Iraqi Interior Minister Bayan Jabr has said. (AP)

IRAQ | BACK IN ACTION

OPEN FIELD: Iraqi boys display their soccer skills on Sunday at Baghdad's Shaab Stadium, the city's biggest sports complex. Some 2,000 people came out to watch two elite teams play at the stadium, which was taken over two years ago for use as a U.S. base and finally reopened on Sunday.

Aubenas, 43, a reporter for the newspaper Liberation, provided no information about her kidnappers or details about her release. (AP)

Anti-Syria Opposition Falters

Lebanese critical of Damascus fall behind in 3rd round of voting

SOUK EL-GHARB | Anti-Syrian candidates apparently suffered major losses in a third round of parliamentary elections Sunday, a senior opposition leader conceded.

Walid Jumblatt said former army commander Michel Aoun, who broke opposition ranks and joined pro-Syrian groups on an anti-corruption slate, was winning in contested constituencies.

Aoun's success could hurt the opposition's drive to gain a majority in the 128-seat legislature and leave him a key player.

Preliminary results showed Aoun and his allies leading in several districts. Official results were expected Monday.

Jumblatt accused Aoun, who

A supporter of Michel Aoun votes at a polling station near Beirut on Sunday.

returned from 14 years' exile in May, of being brought in by Damascus to undermine the opposition.

Aoun

Jumblatt

Aoun, who fought and lost a war against Syria in 1989, broke with the opposition after his return from exile. He says his feud with Syria is over now that Damascus has withdrawn its army from the country, and he campaigned on a platform to fight the corruption he blames for Lebanon's economic ills.

Anti-Syrian forces need at least 45 more seats to win a firm grasp on Parliament and wean it of Damascus' control. The four-stage elections end next Sunday when voters cast their ballots in northern Lebanon. (AP)

Chechnya-to-Moscow Train Bombed

MOSCOW | A bomb packed with TNT blew a passenger train traveling from Chechnya to Moscow off its tracks Sunday, injuring at least 15 people.

The blast occurred just hours before President Vladimir Putin marked the Day of Russia holiday in the Kremlin. Officials did not name any suspects and no group claimed responsibility. But Chechen separatist rebels frequently stage attacks on Russian holidays. Deputy prosecutor general Nikolai Savchenko said a criminal case had been opened, Interfax reported. (AP)

Vote in Italy Tests Power Of Vatican

ROME | Italians voted Sunday in a national referendum to end some of Europe's toughest restrictions on fertility treatments, including bans on freezing embryos and on sperm and egg donations.

The vote was widely seen as a test of the Roman Catholic Church's influence in this overwhelmingly Catholic nation, and Italian cardinals and bishops — endorsed by Pope Benedict XVI — urged citizens to boycott the referendum.

Widespread abstention would doom the efforts to throw out several provisions of the law, including one that prohibits egg or sperm donation from outside the couple and another banning scientific research using human embryos. Referendum results won't count unless voter turnout reaches 50 percent.

As polls closed, just over 13 percent of eligible voters had cast ballots, according to the Interior Ministry. Voting will resume Monday. (AP)

Va. Weighs Cost of Traffic Cameras

As pilot program ends, counties report losses

FAIRFAX, VA. | Red light cameras have been criticized as money makers masquerading as safety devices. But several jurisdictions predict their budgets will be better off when Virginia ends the pilot program this summer.

"We've probably lost $1 million over five years, and I hesitate to say lost," Bruce Taylor, Fairfax County's Traffic System Program Manager, said of the cameras. "When you look at societal costs, obviously it prevents people from getting hurt."

Arlington, Falls Church and

Alexandria had similar reports financially about the cameras since their inception.

Fairfax County installed cameras at 15 locations over the past five years, at a cost of about $40,000 per camera.

During this time, Taylor said the county has seen a 60 percent decrease in red-light violations.

Having served as a volunteer paramedic in Loudoun County for seven years, Taylor saw firsthand some of the worst accidents resulting from the rush to make a light. He sees state lawmakers' decision not to renew the program — ending it July 1 — as "putting politics above people's lives."

? SINCE YOU ASKED

Q I have been a Metro fanatic since I was a kid (sorry, I just think trains are still neat) and have always dreamed about sitting in as a train operator just so that I can make some station announcements, like "Yellow Line to Mt. Vernon Square." Does Metro have a ride-along program where I can do this, and live out my dream just for a little while?

A Sorry, but nope. File that dream under "Shattered." But don't take it personally, the transit agency says. "It's a safety thing," said Metro spokeswoman Lisa Farbstein.

The only people allowed in the operator's cab are the actual operators, their supervisors and Metro trainers. So your best bet would be to land one of those jobs. You are, however, welcome to stand on the platform and call out whatever destinations you want, she said. DANNY FREEDMAN

Md. Eyes Metro Line Out to BWI

BALTIMORE | Maryland transportation officials are studying ways to build a Metro line between Greenbelt and Baltimore-Washington International Airport.

"It's a concept, not a plan," Maryland Secretary of Transportation Robert Flanagan said of the effort. The line would be 20 miles long and could open, in stages, within two decades, Flanagan told The Washington Post.

But much depends on whether the state can persuade businesses to pay a large portion of the cost, which could run as high as $2.6 billion. Metro extensions typically are paid for with state and federal dollars. Any proposal probably would have to compete for federal money with proposed extensions to Dulles Airport and Fort Belvoir. Teen Stabbed to Death After Party

GERMANTOWN, MD. | A teenager was stabbed and killed early Sunday during an argument, Montgomery County police said.

Investigators were called to the 22300 block of Canterfield Way about 1:30 a.m., and found 18-year-old Ezekiel Babendreier in the street. He had been attending a party in the neighborhood, authorities said. Babendreier graduated from Damascus High School earlier this month. (AP)

PROVIDENCE, R.I. | Looking to grab some footage on the go? There's now a disposable video camera.

The $29.99 pocket-sized digital cameras capture up to 20 minutes of video that CVS will process onto a DVD for $12.99; users can also e-mail video. The Pure Digital Technologies camera has just three buttons: start/stop, play back, and delete.

Grant Pill of CVS called the camera a cheap, easy video option. The camcorder weighs 5.5 ounces and is held vertically, he said. After filming, users can watch the footage through a 1.4-inch wide color display and choose to delete the segment at any time.

'xxx' Marks the Spot

New domain offered to Internet porn sites, but do they want it?

NEW YORK | An Internet red-light district tentatively cleared for construction — the ".xxx" domain — is being billed by backers as a unique opportunity for the $12 billion online porn industry. As a distinct online sector, one forbidding trickery, ".xxx" will also reduce the chances of accidentally visiting a porn site, supporters argue.

The Internet's oversight body, the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers, approved ".xxx" this month. If OK'd by the Commerce Department, ".xxx" could be used by the year's end.

Internet safety expert Parry Aftab said incentives are needed to get sites to join.

A private company would charge $60 for each name, $10 of which would go to a nonprofit organization — run by adult Web site representatives and free-speech, privacy and child advocates — that would determine registration eligibility and educate parents about safe surfing for children.

But porn site participation will be voluntary, and skeptics say sites will keep using ".com." Many companies consider ".xxx" to be "the first step toward driving the adult Internet into a ghetto, very much like zoning laws have driven adult stores into the outskirts," said Mark Kernes of Adult Video News.

"There are going to be pressures" to regulate it, said Marjorie Heins of New York University.

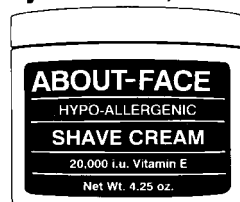

But supporters say adult sites will have incentives to use it. "If the carrot's big enough, you're going to get sites in there," said Parry Aftab, an Internet safety expert.

Stuart Lawley of ICM Registry, which would charge the fees, said ".xxx" can protect companies from violating a law against tricking children into viewing pornography — as ".xxx" would clearly denote an adult site. All ".xxx" sites would also be prohibited from spamming and malicious scripts, he said.

Garcia Conquers Congressional

Spaniard grabs early lead, coasts to victory at Booz Allen Classic

GOLF | Sergio Garcia emerged from a pack of contenders to master Congressional's Blue Course as few others have, closing with a 6-under 65 on Sunday for a two-stroke victory in the Booz Allen Classic.

Garcia looked in major form in the final tournament before the U.S. Open when he took a big lead with a front-nine 30 and then held steady through a few precarious holes down the stretch. He finished with a 14-under 270 total.

Davis Love III (66), Ben Crane (67) and 2004 winner Adam Scott (68) tied for second.

Garcia's 270 total tied the course record at Congressional, which wasn't its usual fearsome self in its first U.S. PGA Tour event in eight years.

Third-round leader Tom Kite, attempting to become the oldest winner in PGA Tour history at age 55, struggled with his putter and finished with a 74 to tie for 13th at 7-under 277.

Garcia's sixth American tour victory helped compensate for his collapse in last month's Wachovia Championship, when the 25-year-old Spaniard blew a six-shot lead in the final round before losing to Vijay Singh in a three-way playoff.

Garcia, who also won the Buick Classic last year the week before the U.S. Open, said the "Wachovia ghost" was flying through his head when he missed the green with his tee shot at the par-3 18th to finish with a bogey, but his lead was safe because Scott — the only player left with a realistic chance to overtake him — put a bad-hop approach in the water at the No. 17.

Garcia breezed through the first 10 holes. He one-putted eight consecutive greens, including an 18-footer for eagle at the par-5 sixth and a 10-foot putt for birdie at No. 10, the hardest hole on the course. He was in the sand at No. 13 but saved par with another 10-footer. He bogeyed No. 15 after his approach landed in the rough, but he regained the stroke with a 25-foot birdie putt at the 16th.

Sorenstam Halfway To Historic Grand Slam

WOMEN'S GOLF | Annika Sorenstam is making the Grand Slam look like a slam dunk.

Never threatened from the start, sloppy at the end when it no longer mattered, Sorenstam took another step toward a sweep of the four majors Sunday by closing with a 1-over 73 for a three-shot victory over Michelle Wie in the LPGA Championship.

Sorenstam became the first LPGA Tour player in 19 years to get halfway home to a Grand Slam, and no one has any reason to believe she won't win the next two.

"You are witnessing one of the greatest runs of any athlete in any sport at any time," LPGA commissioner Ty Votaw said.

Sorenstam finished at 11-under 277 and earned $270,000, pushing her career total to more than $17 million. Since playing in the Colonial on the PGA Tour two years ago, she has won 19 of her 38 events on the LPGA Tour.

Reflection Leads to Remorse for Alex

HORSE RACING | On the morning after the Belmont Stakes, reality set in: Preakness and Belmont winner Afleet Alex came within 8 feet of winning the Triple Crown.

Unlike the past three years, when the Belmont was the undoing of Triple Crown hopefuls, Afleet Alex was tripped up by the first race in the series, the Kentucky Derby.

After losing by a length — about 8 feet — to a pair of long shots, Afleet Alex won the Preakness by 4 3/4 lengths despite nearly falling, then bounced back with an overpowering seven-length victory in Saturday's final leg of the Triple Crown.

Moments after the Belmont, jockey Jeremy Rose was blaming himself for the Derby defeat. If it weren't for him, he said, Afleet Alex would be the first Triple Crown champion since Affirmed in 1978.

Trainer Tim Ritchey disagreed, saying that Rose rode a great race. He added that Afleet Alex definitely would run next year as a 4-year-old, and any deal for breeding interests would include that guarantee. (AP)

10th Straight Win Draws High-Fives

Nats drop Mariners for another sweep at home

NATIONALS | After meeting on the infield grass for high-fives and back slaps in celebration of their 10th straight victory, the Washington Nationals looked into the stands at RFK and saw most of the 37,170 spectators on their feet, applauding. Several players clapped right back and manager Frank Robinson doffed his cap.

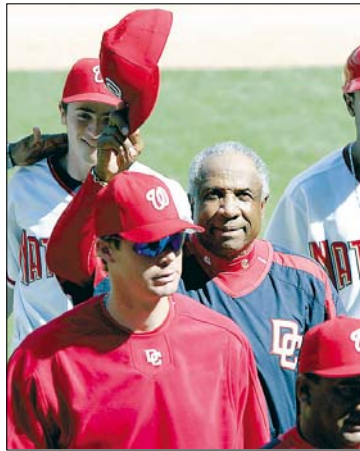

It's tough to tell who's enjoying the Nats' success more, the team that felt as if it didn't have a true home the past couple of seasons, or the fans who waited 34 years for a major league club to call their own.

The Nationals completed a 12-1 homestand by beating the Seattle Mariners 3-2 Sunday, thanks mainly to Junior Spivey's two-run homer and five trying but scoreless innings from Tony Armas Jr.

"It's been a long time coming. We feel energized by our situation now," outfielder Brad Wilkerson said. "To walk off and know they recognize what we do is just a great feeling."

Washington's winning streak of 10 games ties a franchise record and sets a high for the NL this season.

Nats manager Frank Robinson tips his hat to the crowd after a 10th straight win.

The team has swept three straight series and four overall; as the Expos, it had three sweeps in all of 2004.

Armas (3-3) gave up five hits and three walks, but had six strikeouts and plenty of help from Seattle's batters. The Mariners left two men on in each of the first four innings, and they went 0-for-10 with runners in scoring position.

After Gary Majewski replaced Armas and gave up RBI doubles by pinch-hitter Gary Dobbs in the sixth and Raul Ibanez in the seventh, Luis Ayala got four outs, and gave way to Chad Cordero for his 19th save. (AP)

Orioles Lose to Cellar-Dwelling Reds Yet Again

ORIOLES | Ken Griffey Jr. hit a go-ahead home run, helping the Cincinnati Reds overcome Sammy Sosa's two homers in a 10-6 victory over the Orioles on Sunday.

Griffey finished a triple short of the cycle. Rich Aurilia homered and drove in four runs for the Reds.

The Orioles lost their second consecutive road series after opening the season by winning or splitting their first eight. Sidney Ponson (6-4) gave up seven runs and 11 hits, losing for the third time in his last four decisions. (AP)

The last image of Mike Tyson in the ring is a far cry from his title days 19 years ago.

Mike Tyson's Punch Out

After loss, ex-champ admits 'career has been over since 1990'

BOXING | Mike Tyson was sprawled on the canvas, his head stuck oddly between the first and second ropes. Kevin McBride had shoved him down and now he sat there, trying to contemplate whether to get up.

The round was over, and so was Tyson's career — 19 years after he became the youngest man to win the heavyweight title.

"I'm not going to lie to myself," Tyson, 38, said. "I'm not going to embarrass this sport any more."

He was an aging heavyweight who looked older by the minute Saturday night, finally coming to grips with the fact that this was the way it was going to end. Tyson sat on his stool and told referee Joe Cortez he had had enough: enough for this fight; enough for a tortured career that began with greatness only to spiral out of control and finally end in desperation and sadness.

He wasn't the baddest man on the planet anymore, not the baddest man in Washington, not even the baddest man in the ring.

"It's finished," Tyson admitted after the fight. "My career has been over since 1990." TIM DAHLBERG (AP)

MAN ON THE VERGE: "Batman Begins" is almost sure to catapult Christian Bale from cult heartthrob to mainstream star.

New Beginning

Christian Bale teeters on the edge of losing his edge with 'Batman'

TRANSITIONS | Leave it to fringe actor Christian Bale to play a superhero on the fringe.

Bale shot to child stardom in Steven Spielberg's "Empire of the Sun," then moved on to a cultish grown-up career. He now re-creates the comic-book dark knight with "Batman Begins."

In "American Psycho," Bale was a remorseless yuppie serial killer. In "The Machinist," he was a gaunt scarecrow suffering through a year-long bout of insomnia.

Even his higher-profile films — the musical "Newsies," the World War II dance tale "Swing Kids," the period dramas "Little Women" and "The Portrait of a Lady" — show Bale's tastes run somewhere south of mainstream.

"I never had a desire to be well known," Bale said. "There was never enormous ambition, so I think I managed to stay under the radar for most people in the public eye."

For much of that time, Bale has focused on smaller, offbeat movies such as "Velvet Goldmine," "Metroland" and "Laurel Canyon."

"I just don't quite get what people see in so many of the big blockbust-er movies," he said. "They seem so simplistic, they seem so dumbed-down, that I can't see why I would want to pay nine bucks or whatever it is now for going to see that."

"Batman Begins" presents the early days of the DC Comics hero, offering a darker vision than the film series that began with Tim Burton's 1989 "Batman."

The new "Batman" presents billionaire Bruce Wayne torn between justice and vigilante vengeance years after witnessing his parents' murders. Bruce travels the globe to delve into the criminal mind and eventually finds a mentor (Liam Neeson) who hones the young man's mind and body for the task of fighting corruption.

Aiming for gritty realism compared to the camp and style of earlier "Batman" incarnations, the filmmakers needed an actor who could credibly capture the fanaticism that would drive a man to cloak himself in a bat-suit.

Bale counts on the luster of "Batman Begins" to give him clout on independent movies he wants to do.

"Before, it was always the directors wanted me, but the financiers were saying, 'No way are you touching that guy.' Maybe they'll say, 'Yeah, wait, we'll touch him this time. We'll use him.' If I can help to get those movies made, then I'll feel like this was really a double whammy of success."

Singer Shakira's Spanish-only album shows off her vocals

MUSIC | In a way, it's almost a shame that Columbian singer Shakira is so gorgeous and her dance moves so mesmerizing, because it's easy to overlook the power and variety of her unique voice.

Fortunately, the release of "Fijacion Oral Vol. 1" (Epic), the first half of her new two-album project, gives the listener a chance to hear Shakira showing off her best asset. (An English-language second volume is set for release in the fall.)

The melancholy yodel of her voice is expertly used throughout her 10-song collection, such as on the mellow opening "En Tus Pupilas." The breakout single, "La Tortura," is a sexy duet with Spanish star Alejandro Sanz that has an infectious accordion line woven into the chorus and Sanz playing the tres, a

The 28-year-old paired up with several co-writers for the project, which is produced by Rick Rubin.

Not every cut is a standout, but any weaknesses are easily forgiven by a close listen to "Obtener Un Si," an absolutely superb bossa nova flavored with retro orchestrations.

Those who have grown accustomed to only seeing Shakira will be surprised to remember that her voice is, indeed, simply love-

STILL SOUNDS FUNKY-FRESH: KDAY-FM radio DJ Julio G is happy to spin old-school rap as well as the latest in hip-hop.

Back in the Day Is Now

CYCLES | A young boy asks for the latest from Ludacris. Junior from Stanton wants to hear some classic Bone Thugs-N-Harmony. Randy is hankering for political rapper Paris' decade-old "Guerrilla Funk."

In the studios of KDAY-FM in Los Angeles, DJ Julio G is surprised and pleased by the last request.

"Wow. I haven't heard that in a while. That's hip-hop," he tells the caller.

by the genre's latest hits. The booming, marketer-friendly audience in its 20s and 30s is starting to find more mature alternatives to the ever-young party and gangster rap that populates the current charts.

KDAY is the first hip-hop oldies radio station in the United States. In Atlanta, WFOX plays "the best jamz of the '80s, '90s and now" — with Whodini classics sandwiched between R. Kelly and Usher.

New York urban station WWPR (Power 105.1) is among the top-rated in the market and plays about three hip-hop or R&B oldies an hour.

Nearly every urban radio station around the country features at least one so-called old school show. And the new wave of satellite radio embraced the old wave of hip-hop several years ago. Dana Dane and Kurtis Blow host a show on Sirius' "Backspin" channel. Snoop Dogg has a weekly program featuring old-school rap and funk on XM channel "The Rhyme."

The programming could take off elsewhere as advertisers and radio executives recognize the buying power of aging hip-hop fans and the staying power of the music generally, said Dana Hall, urban and rhythmic editor for Radio & Records.

"It's just a matter of time," she said. "Hip-hop has kind of proven itself. It's not going away. It wasn't like disco, it wasn't like hair bands."

Mystery Island's Secrets

A fake Web site connected to ABC's 'Lost' yields clues

FAN FRENZY | Fans of ABC's "Lost" have been, well, lost since the drama about plane-crash survivors on a maddeningly mysterious island aired its final first-season episode.

But those in search of clues found a live one in a fleeting shot of a poster for the fictional Oceanic Air. The site, www.oceanic-air.com, was developed with the show's creators and writers, said Mike Benson, Answers to the mysteries of Oceanic Air flight 815 may be found online.

ABC senior vice president of marketing. "With this show, everything happens for a reason, and it's the same with the Web site."

Which is why Internet fan boards are buzzing about the site's mystery items: an interactive seating chart that pops up when the show's mystical numbers — 4, 8, 15, 16, 23, 42 — are plugged in. And a script page with a scene revealing the island's elusive monster, with the hand-lettered admonition: "No! No! No!! No mapinguari! NOT YET!"

According to the lore of Brazil's Amazon jungle, a mapinguari is a sloth-like creature with a terrible smell, slashing claws and an aggressive disinclination for being disturbed, even by highly rated network shows. LYNN ELBER (AP)

Two new puzzlers provide retro-style challenges for gamers

VIDEO GAMES | What's great about puzzle games is that there's no real commitment and no story line.

But beware of the addictive nature of handheld games — it's easy to jump in, but getting back out is another story. A look at two of the latest:

When it comes to puzzle games, the common thread always seems to be matching. Whether it's colors, patterns, symbols, fruits, vegetables or Snoods, get three or more in a row and you're set.

With "Polarium," for the Nintendo DS, even though you're either turning black tiles white or white tiles black, there's a lot more to this puzzle. Using a stylus and the touch-sensitive screen, players flip tiles to eliminate an entire row, column or block of tiles.

IGNITION ENTERTAINMENT/AP

In Challenge Mode, players have a limited amount of time to match and eliminate tiles, while lines of various tiled patterns continue to fall.

But, the best part of the game is the Puzzle Mode, where players take a set pattern of tiles and eliminate it with one fell swoop of your stylus.

The premise of Ignition Entertainment's "Mercury" has been done many times: Take an object and maneuver your way through obstacles and moving platforms to reach the end of the level without falling off the edge.

But liquid mercury is a lot harder to maneuver than a solid marble.

Players tilt levels to move the blobs through ramps, mazes, pile-drivers, mercury-munchers and other obstacles. Players also have to spray-paint the mercury different colors to make it through same-colored gates. As the levels progress, blobs need to be combined to create new colors.

Do you or does someone you know have bipolar depression?

Bipolar disorder is a serious disorder of the brain that can cause extreme shifts in mood, energy, and functioning. Individuals with bipolar disorder usually suffer from cycles of mania/hypomania and depression. Bipolar depression symptoms may include persistent sadness or emptiness, irritability, loss of interest in previously enjoyed activities, or difficulty concentrating.

If you or someone you know is experiencing symptoms of depression and have been diagnosed with bipolar I or bipolar II disorder, you may be interested to learn about a clinical research study of an investigational medication for bipolar depression.

We are looking for male and female participants between the ages of 18 and 65. For more information, please visit our Web site at bipolardepressionresearch.com

Television

GAME ON: What's tougher than Master Chief on the small screen? Master Chief on the big screen. Universal Pictures and 20th Century Fox are joining forces to turn "Halo," Microsoft's bloody video game starring the Marine warrior, into a movie.

New Kid in Town

Kyra Sedgwick brings nuance and depth to TNT's 'The Closer'

DEBUT | She's a tough-as-nails investigator with a CIA background. She's a bit of a glamour-puss. And maybe she's a little nuts. She's "The Closer" (9 p.m., TNT). Kyra Sedgwick stars in the title role as Deputy Police Chief Brenda Johnson, recently imported to the LAPD by Assistant Police Chief Will Pope (J.K. Simmons), who may or may not be her former lover. Her presence results in immediate turmoil among the ranks.

STEEL MAGNOLIA: Sedgwick's Brenda Johnson talks sweet but takes no guff.

In a roomful of donut-crazed gumshoes, she projects the frazzled demeanor of a ditzzy college professor. And there's her accent. Brenda speaks in a Southern drawl sweeter than Waffle House pancake syrup. So it's all the more surprising when she cuts off her fellow officers with the abruptness of a New York lawyer strung out on Starbucks. Brenda's squad has one case to ponder — a moldy cadaver may have been the remains of the girlfriend of a fugitive software tycoon. The protagonist's discordant traits make her a confusing co-worker, an interesting character and a feast for an actress as capable as Ms. Sedgwick. "The Closer" deserves a closer look. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

SAME OLD WHACKING
Ray Liotta narrates INSIDE THE MAFIA (9 p.m., National Geographic), a four-hour history of organized crime. "Mafia" relies on often-repeated dramatic reenactments and period footage to document well-covered terrain.

SMART MOVES
THE SCHOLAR (8 p.m., ABC) Teens sharpen their No. 2 pencils.

SO ... 'AVERAGE PERFORMANCES'
Amateurs train to sing "Rigoletto" on "Operatunity" a presentation of GREAT PERFORMANCES (9 p.m., PBS).

HE CAN KEEP MOVING AROUND TV, BUT WE CAN STILL SEE HIM
THE SITUATION WITH TUCKER CARLSON (9 p.m., MSNBC) Cablenewsadds another voice to its right-wing chorale.

ME, ME, ME: Amateur opera hopefuls reach for the stars — or that high note.

CULT CHOICE
Bette Midler, Sarah Jessica Parker and Kathy Najimy star as witches in the 1993 misfire HOCUS POCUS (8 p.m., Disney), a botched combination of broad comedy and terrifying special effects. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Careers

Traveling Technician

MICHAEL YALOVE, 34

JOB: Technician for Geeks on Call

SALARY: Base salary ranges from $30,000 to $50,000, plus commissions for equipment sales, contract sales and work conducted weekdays before 9 a.m. and after 6 p.m. Geeks can also earn weekly and quarterly performance bonuses.

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in finance from George Washington University

WHAT HE DOES: Yalove roves the D.C. metro area in his company-issued PT Cruiser, responding to distress calls from individuals and businesses. Fixes can take anywhere from minutes to hours; he might need to rebuild a computer or simply tame some unruly icons. One customer's computer signed off the Internet after sending or receiving every e-mail, so he simply switched off that feature. "I was there for like two minutes," he said. Making housecalls isn't as awkward as it might seem; in fact, folks tend to take care of their geek. One client made him brownies and the next time he went to that house, "they had a sandwich for me." When he's on the clock but has no appointments, Yalove pounds the pavement trying to sell tech-support contracts to businesses or hanging fliers on doorknobs.

WOULD YOU WANT HIS JOB? Dealing with other people's tech messes can try one's patience. If a broken part is still under warranty, he'll call the manufacturer for the customer, but might spend hours discussing his troubleshooting methods before they'll send the part. Fixes can also be hampered by a customer's less-than-total disclosure: "Nobody ever admits that they did this or they did that. They just say it's not working," he said.

HOW YOU CAN GET HIS JOB: Applicants need A+ certification from the Computing Technology Industry Association (comptia.org) and a more advanced certification, such as those offered by Microsoft (microsoft.com/learning) or Cisco Systems (cisco.com/en/US/learning), said local Geeks on Call franchise owner Jeffrey Phelps. A niche specialty, such as Macs or Linux, can also be helpful, said Phelps.

FOR MORE INFORMATION: Openings at the company are posted at geeksoncall.com; information on training programs and other job listings can be found at comptia.org.

HR Pros Say Weight Can Matter

HIRING | Weight could factor into hiring, a recent survey of human resources professionals suggests. A quarter of 552 HR workers by HR.BLR.com polled acknowledged that an applicant's weight had played a role in their hiring decision, while another 35 percent said "maybe unconsciously" to that question.

Courts have generally not sided with workers on the issue, notes Susan Prince, managing editor of Business & Legal Reports, which operates HR.BLR.com. Federal law does not "expressly prohibit discrimination on the basis of physical appearance, such as weight," she said. (AP)

LIVE ONLINE

Life at Work

AMY JOYCE's column appears Sundays in The Washington Post. She chats every Tuesday at 11 a.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

I just graduated from law school and am currently applying for jobs, with the goal of starting in September. My problem: I'm going abroad for three weeks in November. How do I broach this with potential employers?

Wait until negotiation time, which is usually after they make an offer. If they balk at three weeks (which, frankly, is a lot when you just started a job), think about whether you're willing to give up a week of that vacation.

I'm four months into my first job out of college. My computer screen is inches from that of the girl I sit next to, and I noticed that she and another co-worker often make fun of me in e-mails to each other. I confronted her, and she said the other guy was having a bad day, we work in close quarters, don't take it personally, come out to the bar with us tonight, etc. How do I avoid becoming the office pariah?

Unfortunately, cubeland often mirrors high school. Try to focus on your work. Try NOT to look at your co-worker's computer. Be nice. Talk to them if you want, don't talk to them if you don't want. Four months isn't a very long time. You'll eventually build friendships within the office, if you want to.

What kind of person steals your yogurt from the office fridge? Should one give up all hope of being happy in a job at that point?

Get yourself a marker and put your name on it. Tie it to the fridge shelf. Leave outdated yogurt in the fridge until they get the message.

Preservation

A local conservator shares his tricks for preserving your junk

Don Williams is a Smithsonian conservator with Captain-Kangaroo looks, a large and varied collection of suspenders and a major shellac obsession. With his friend, writer Louisa Jaggar, he's distilled his museum preservation wisdom into the new book "Saving Stuff" (Fireside, $16), which details how to shield everything from action figures to xylophones against the ravages of time.

The first step in saving your junk — er, stuff — is finding a safe place for it. Jaggar had the idea for the book when the heavy snows in February 2002 turned into floods and everything in her Maryland ment — kids' school paper stuffed animals, you name it. Eventually, though, everything you own will fall apart, Williams said. "It's all going back to dirt. We're just trying to slow it down."

Here, the basics on saving a few of your closet treasures:

Han Solo action figure: Williams said he cried when Jaggar made him cut his treatise on depolymerization of plastics the book. Suffice to say that body is letting off gasses all the time. He should be stored somewhere with good ventilation, where the gases can't collect and speed up the degradation process. If Han needs cleaning, use water — distilled water, on Harrison's features will start looking hazy sometime next century. Keep him somewhere cool, dry and dark, wrapped in acid-free tissue. If you must display him, do so in as little light as possible.

Your one piece of non-IKEA wood furniture: If you're using oil, stop now. Over time, it will turn your treasured item black. Don't use anything but high-quality paste wax, in fact. As long as the surface isn't flaking, give the item a good waxing every year or so.

Williams' advice goes against the innate human need for Lemon Pledge; indeed, the cabinet under Jaggar's sink was filled with forbidden products to make furniture nice and shiny. "I would be throwing stuff out and she was sneaking them back in," Williams said.

Prom night photos: The main threat to color photographs is light. If you want to display that "In the Still of the Night" picture, make a copy and store the original. The best way to save the photos, said Williams, is to slip each one into an archival photo envelope. Write identifying information on the envelope and the back of the photo with a graphite pencil. Then stack them flat in an archival box. (Archival supplies can be found at craft stores like Michael's.)

Collection of random issues of the Post that seemed important at the time: "They're pretty hopeless," Williams said; the "notoriously bad paper" will fade if you so much as look at it funny. The easiest way to save newspapers is to stack them, folded just as they were delivered. Place them somewhere cool (not the dry (not the basement). Feeling more ambitious, lay them flat and put each section in an acid-free folder, or put a special acid-free piece of paper called a buffered board between each section. To insects, a newspaper is a tasty salad, so leave a bug trap nearby.

The only sure-fire way to save newspapers, Williams said, is to take the pages to a copy shop that does large-format scanning. Ask for a copy on rag paper, a long-lasting material made from cotton and linen rags.

Foul ball from the Nats-Mariners game: Clean the leather with Q-tips dipped in distilled water. Keep the ball in a dust-free, preferably light-free environment. The Container Store sells display cases that would work fine.

No matter what you're saving, note some basic information about it. "For [Jaggar], it's all that girly story stuff," said Williams, who prefers to record preservation info. Write a description of the highly romantic moment when your prom date asked you out over the phone, and keep it with your photos, for instance. Use india ink ("Which is ... shellac," Williams said. "Gimme five.") and nice linen stationery, and your words will last forever. Then, when your great-great grandchildren throw out all your carefully preserved stuff, at least they'll feel guilty about it. HELEN FIELDS

Post TV columnist LISA DE MORAES was online Friday to discuss "Dancing With The Stars" and "Hit Me Baby One More Time" | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

"Hit Me Baby One More Time." Genius! But the host — really tall British beanpole guy who says "Vaniller Ice." What do you think — cross between John Elway and Mick Jagger?

Funny, Vernon Kay reminds me more of the Monkees' Davy Jones after eight days on a torture rack.

I absolutely adored the Tye Diggs show "Kevin Hill." I'm crushed that it was canceled! Is there anything I can do to get them to bring it back?

No. Nothing. Get over it. That never works ... unless DVD sales go through the roof. Then they will bring it back.

I was mildly entertained by the first episode of "Dancing with the Stars," but couldn't bear to watch the second. At least the public was smart and voted Trista off first. Hopefully she will take the hint and we won't be subjected to "Trista and Ryan Have a Baby."

Trista doesn't know the meaning of the word "hint." She can't afford to because Trista, according to ABC's bio of her on the show's Web site, is a professional "reality star." I'm betting Trista will have a camera in the delivery room.

According to Nielsen, I'm one of about six people who watch "American Morning" on CNN. And I even like the show. Why is Bill Hemmer leaving and where is he rumored to end up?

"Chemistry," says CNN/U.S. chief Jonathan Klein. He thinks Miles O'Brien will have better chemistry with Soledad O'Brien who, apparently, is untouchable. So Rick Squarejaw is out and is leaving CNN — very sad stuff. I'm one of the other five watching the show; I like it, too. I'm particularly sorry they're losing Jack Cafferty (though he's not leaving the network, instead going to Wolf Blitzer's three-hour p.m. show). I thought he was a fun jolt in the morning. Did I mention that Blitzer is going to be on for three hours?

O's Fans' Anthem Antics OK

IN RESPONSE TO Matt Swenson's column in Friday's edition ("Anthem Cheer for the Birds"), I think calling the Orioles' tradition "desecration" goes too far. I agree the Baltimore tradition has no place in D.C. baseball, but what of the national anthem abuses that occur when a singer takes it upon himself to retool the music in the name of "art" or "accessibility"? That which brings Baltimore fans together is no less disrespectful than the musical irreverence we tolerate daily. O's fans should keep the tradition in Baltimore, and anthem singers should stick to the score.

Correction:

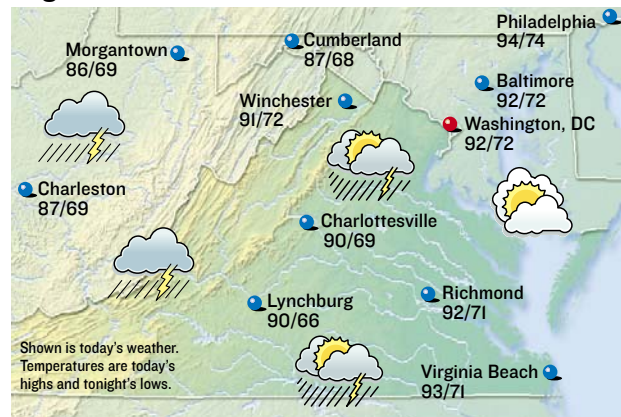

Friday's edition incorrectly stated the date of the shooting at Colonel Brooks Tavern in Northeast Washington. It took place April 6, 2003.

Wills Continues to Be Perfect, But Not Too Perfect

PRINCE WILLIAM learned Saturday that he had achieved a master of arts degree in geography. Wills received a 2:1 grade for his four-year course at St. Andrews University. A 2:1 denotes an upper second-class degree, a very respectable achievement. The prince did better than his father, who received a 2:2, or lower second class degree. (AP)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Have faith in the personal commitment of a close friend. He or she is there for you when you need help, through thick or thin.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to be testy or grumpy with others; it is only misdirected frustration you are expressing. Guard against excessive moodiness.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An opportunity will arise for you to lend a helping hand. Take the time to make that extra effort; you'll soon need help, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't get caught up in the rumor-mill; the information is sure to come to you in a rush from several sources. Let inaccuracy stop with you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Loose lips sink ships — be sure that you're not the one to reveal a secret that is best kept closely guarded.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Someone has been waiting for an answer from you for some time. Don't hesitate any longer; make a decision and stick with it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Enjoy a nice, comfortable evening at home. Indulge yourself with a loved one, or relax by yourself; either reaps rewards.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will have a tendency to be neglectful and absent-minded. Stay on top of it, and do whatever you can to avoid losing track of yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Don't try to be too mysterious. There is the proper time and place for your aloof, coy side; this, clearly, isn't it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Take time out to do something that makes you genuinely happy. Work on a special project; play games just for fun.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Make a personal sacrifice. It may be difficult to let go of that part of yourself, but that special someone will meet you halfway.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Take an important matter to someone in authority. A problem has been festering, put it in someone else's hands.
